“ I worked with Alvin at Holdiay Inn years ago and ran in to him while visiting his grandmother's grave last summer. He was such a joy to be around always laughing and smiling and joking. Sending love to his wife and children that God may comfort you now and in the days and years to come. Rest well my brother!

“ My brother! I love you so much! I can't recall a time we fought except for in Street Fighter (the video game on the Sega Genesis) as kids. Thank you for being the best big brother to me and loving Brandon as your own.

During what I thought was the most difficult time in my life, when that one door closed, you opened a whole house of love to Moo Moo and I. I always told you that I thank GOD for those few months of transition because our kids become even closer, and our bond grew deeper. I needed that! I thank GOD for that! I learned what teamwork really looks like in a marriage, how important family truly is, a fathers sacrifice, dedication, agape love, to order Pizza on Friday's and even forgiveness.

I'll miss our hour conversations, your " I love you sis" texts just because, our shared videos of sermons or me reminding people don't believe anything you posts on social media, you're joking, it's a prank.

I'll never forget how you supported Momma, Brandon, Alex and I through it all even though you were the head of your own family! You made sure Brandon had his uncle support you was that consistent Father Figure. Violin Concerts, Football Games, School functions, birthday parties, Family Functions will never be the same.

Times I was sick, without hesitation, you'll step in. Thank you! And when I vent in frustration you always reinsured me that GOD has people in my life to fill in the gaps.

You stayed positive, never downing anyone or judging situations, making people feel good about themselves even in their wrongdoings. You were that type of person with a heart gold! A heart like David's.

I'll ketchup with you like mustard!

I love you Big Brother! Well Done! - Lil Sis
