“ *Granny Pearl,
Where do I begin? You were never Granny Pearl to me you were granny or grandma. I remember when you first moved into the condo and all the grandkids were always at your house. I remember going to Wagonwheel for twenty-five cent icecream cones. I remember coming to your house in the mornings so that you could walk me through the cut to school. Or when I was pregnant you telling me how "wide" I was getting. The random calls asking what I was cooking or just to see what I was doing and to say "I love you, darling". I can still hear you on the voicemail saying "Keeee, this is Granny. Give me a call. Love youuuu." Gosh I miss you! What am I going to do now?!?! You were our world our everything. I know you are in the land of no more and Jim Earl and Louis were there to greet you. Get your rest granny. We all will be okay. I love you.*
