“ Aunt Marge was the matriarch of the Frank Brown/Marie Brown family. She was a walking history book...a wealth of wisdom and knowledge. She was also very funny. Her laughter was so contagious, that even if you didn't know why you were laughing, you would laugh. She taught, by example, you are not only as 'young as you feel', but also as young as you "think". She taught Sunday School, and read to children in daycare, 'till a little over a year ago. She lived by the motto: I'd rather "wear out" than "rust" out. Aunt Marge will be sorely missed, but she has truly prepared us to both...continue in the "Faith", and continue the Brown legacy. Rest in peace, Aunt Marge. Your niece, Melessa
